17 committed to travel the cost would be £39 per person.
John needs to know if this is acceptable to all or would you prefer car travel if drivers are found.
All travel is of course weather dependent.

Strange to see how a good dinner and feasting reconciles everybody. - Samuel Pepys

Church locking rota We are grateful to those who open a lock up church each day. It is good that we are

Write it on your heart that every day is the best day in the year. - Ralph Waldo Emerson

It's not fair!

Does this sound like you? When my brother, sister and I were young it was a phrase sometimes heard in the house. Not too often, though, because our mother always had a short answer for us, and I suppose we all knew in any case that we were evenly treated.

You may not know the Scottish jute-workers' song about the 'shifters' - the labourer whose job it was to scurry back and forth trying to keep up with the mill's relentless churning out of the reels and spools. In it the singer says

"Oh dear me, the mill's going fast!

The poor wee shifter cannot get a rest.

We must be contented, dark days or fine,

But there's not much pleasure living

Off of one and nine."

The work was relentless, the pay pitifully small and the conditions dangerous and unhealthy, with accidents frequent and life-threatening.

The big question, however, is how far have we ourselves behaved fairly - justly? Our lectionary reading speaks of God bringing justice to the nations through his servants. That puts a big responsibility on us.

Elsewhere in these notices I have quoted Shylock in The Merchant of Venice. Even as I studied the play in what we now call Year 9, I was struck by the raw deal Shylock had had. All that society at the time allowed him to do was to lend money or to trade, and in return would call him insulting names and spit on him for being a Jew. When Antonio seeks a loan, Shylock replies

You call me misbeliever, cut-throat dog,

And spit upon my Jewish gaberdine,

And all for use of that which is mine own.

'Fair sir, you spit on me on Wednesday last;

You spurn'd me such a day; another time

You call'd me dog; and for these courtesies

I'll lend you thus much moneys?'

Of course, in the play Shylock tried to get deadly revenge on Antonio, and so forfeited the right to our sympathy.

The shifters' song quoted above, has the line:

"Oh dear me, the world's ill-divided!"

Them that works the hardest are the least provided."

"He will bring justice to the nations."

Here is my servant, whom I uphold,
my chosen one in whom I delight;
I will put my Spirit on him,
and he will bring justice to the nations.

Isaiah ch. 42 v. 1 (NIV)

The quality of Mercy

The quality of mercy is not strained;
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath. It is twice blest;
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes:
'T is mightiest in the mightiest; it becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown:
His sceptre shows the force of temporal power,

The attribute to awe and majesty,
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings;
But mercy is above this sceptred sway;
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself;
And earthly power doth then show likest
God's

When mercy seasons justice.

From The Merchant of Venice - William Shakespeare

The play is largely concerned with justice and mercy, and it poses challenges. Shylock fails to see that by his insisting on his legal rights, regardless of any demands of simple humanity, he has opposed the fairness required by God.

Portia, speaking here in the Venetian court, pleads for justice with mercy, which is what we most need. We would probably be in a bad fix if we all received the treatment we deserve. Shakespeare says mercy is paramount. However powerful anyone may be, he or she should temper justice with mercy.

Justice to the nations
